

Spirituality in Reading

Through Reading at Heartwood, we enable spiritual development by the choice of books on our reading spine, which give the children knowledge of others, the world around them, different people's faiths, and their feelings and values. Reading enables the children to imagine themselves as someone else, and to enter another world.

Through the books chosen for school the children can see and appreciate the beauty in language, the values of great work, the heroes and heroines in literature. Reading allows our children to be reflective about their own experiences and gain a different perspective on life. Empathy is developed with authors, characters in stories and plays and is transferred to real life encounters.
